

Easter in England

Eggs, buns, bonnets, parades

Easter is celebrated by exchange of Easter Eggs, cards and other gifts. Gifts can vary from anything between money, clothes, chocolate or go on holidays together.

Traditional food at Easter are hot cross buns. They are sweet bread rolls in the shape of rectangle with a white cross on top.

Some people make Easter bonnets or baskets, which have things like daffodils in them or mini eggs. Children sometimes go to a local community center to enter an Easter bonnet competition to see whose bonnet is the best and the winner gets an Easter egg. Adults sometimes go for Easter parades, where they show their new clothes or bonnets.

Easter Egg Hunt

The Easter bunny is a part of the Easter tradition in England. The shops are full of thousands bunnies which people buy to give to each other. The Easter bunny (parents, of course) 'hides' the eggs in the houses or gardens and children try to find these treats on Easter Sunday.

Easter Egg Roll

Sometimes both children and adults have Easter Egg Roll competitions. They have to roll hard-boiled eggs down a hill and the first egg to reach the bottom without breaking is the winner.
